++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Winds gradually easing, but remaining rather cold, cloudy and unsettled.

This Evening and Tonight:
Heavy rain soon sweeping east to become clearer, although southern coastal districts in particular will retain strong winds and scattered showers. Blustery showers may make inroads from the west more generally later, merging to longer spells of rain in places. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Wednesday:
Remaining windy, but these winds should very gradually ease. Generally rather cloudy, with bands of blustery showers merging to longer spells of rain. Feeling rather cold. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Remaining unsettled and breezy, with some sunshine, but also showers or longer spells of rain. Remaining rather cold, but probably becoming milder and wetter through Saturday.
